Captures of the Alabama.

The recent captures made by the Alabama are thus summed up in correspondence of the Manchester Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, Friday, March 19.

No complete list has hitherto been published of the vessels captured by the Confederate cruiser Alabama, but by the arrival of one of her crew in Liverpool, we have been placed in possession of this information. The following is a list of ships captured since the Alabama left Liverpool to February 27th last: Oemulgee, Alta Mahra, Benjamin Tucker, Corsair, Virginia, Elisha Dunbar, Emily Farnham, (released.) Brilliant, Wave Crest, Dunkirk, Tonawanda, (released.) Manchester, Lamplighter, Lafayette, Crimshaw, Lauretta, Castine, (released,) Levi Starbuck, Thomas B. Wales, Parker Cook, Ariel, (released.) Golden Rule, Golden Eagle, Palmetto, Olive June, Union, (released.) Washington, (released on giving bond for $50,000.) Castlemaine, Hatteras, (Federal man-of-war.)

The following is a list of ships captured by the Alabama since she left Jamaica, Jan. 25, to Feb. 27: Jan. 26, captured the Golden Eagle, bound from some American port to Porto Rico; 27th, captured the brigantine Castine; Feb. 8, captured the schooner Palmetto, for Porto Rico; Feb. 21, captured the ships Golden Eagle and Olive Jane; Feb. 27, Washington, from San Francisco for Queenstown, with cargo of guano, (released on giving bonds for $50,000.)

The Alabama has a crew of about 130 men, who are paid monthly, and who receive for prize money bonds which are payable on the conclusion of a treaty of peace.

HEAT OF THE EARTH'S INTERIOR VOLCANOES. It is generally believed by men of science, and others, that the interior of the earth is a mass of molten matter, the heat of which is intense beyond that which can be produced by known artificial modes. Many of the rocks which form the crust of the earth seem to have been once in a fluid condition, and no skill possessed by man can reduce some of them by heat to the state in which they once existed. Dr. Sijistrom, a Swedish astronomer, expresses it as his belief that the interior of the earth is occupied by currents of various degrees of heat, which mix with each other and attain a certain degree of temperature in the same manner as substances subjected to all the physical influences of the earth's exterior. In other words, the theory is that a mass of fluid possessing different temperatures in different parts of its interior, must be subjected to a process of convection. The result is usually a change of volume in the entire mass of circulating fluid, causing eruptions like those of volcanoes. In Hekla, however, the famous volcanic mountain of Iceland, the heat seems to be local, not proceeding from any great depth in the interior of the earth. A writer in the London Quarterly, who has visited it, states that while vapors were issuing from the black sand summit, in the crater itself, some hundred fathoms below, were gaping icefields and great masses of snow side by side with sulphurous steam jets." The poet who used Hekla as an illustration of blowing hot and cold with one breath was true to nature; for, strange enough, while one part of the cone is quite cold on the surface, steam is issuing from another part higher up, showing that the heat is local, and dependent upon the fiery character of the under beds. This is proved by the experiment of an Icelander at another place, who discovered that the heat began two feet below the surface. Beneath that depth he came to a violet-colored layer of soil of sulphurous odor, where the heat was greatest. Lower still it was found to be less and less, until at the depth of nearly eleven feet there was no heat at all. The depth of greatest heat at Krisuvili was ascertained to be twelve feet below the surface, and below this the heat diminished. It is remarkable that, during the eruptions of Hekla, vast floods of water and ice pour down its sides, with solid rocks and fiery sands. She waters from the volcano flow over vast tracts of low lands, like the freshets of a great river. Where this water comes from is a mystery that has not yet been fully solved.—Scientific American.

AN INCIDENT OF HAWAIIAN HISTORY.—The Honolulu Advertiser says:—Poi, which with Hawaiians, holds the place of bread with foreigners, is just now very scarce and dear. The cause of the high price has been discussed on "the corner" and elsewhere but it is as yet unsettled whether it is attributable "to the war," to speculation, or rice cultivation; but quite likely both the latter causes have had some effect on it. Our friend "Kentuck" recalls to our memory an incident which many may remember as having occurred in the good old days of '48 or '9 when the Governor's word was law and gospel. There was a famine in those days, or rather high prices prevailed, and a calabash of poi, which formerly commanded 25 cents sold for 75 cents. The rise in the price of poi, and the complaints of the people soon reached the ears of Gov. Kekuanaoa, who said it was purely a speculation and must be stopped. So the next day, taking his cane, he walked into the poi market, where the calabashes were all ranged in a row, and the speculators in the "staff of life" were assembled and hawking their wares as eagerly and noisily as brokers in a modern stock exchange. His Excellency watched them a little while, when, walking up to the first calabash, he asked the price. "Ekolu hapaha." (95 cents.) said the owner, and the Gov. drew up his cane and smashed in the container, scattering its contents here and there. Passing on to the second calabash, he made the same inquiry and received the same answer, when it and its contents were scattered in the same manner. The next seller wisely dropped his price to 50 cents, and the Governor spared his lot, and found no one else above that figure. The price of poi suddenly collapsed, and no further complaints were heard of the combination of poi dealers.

CANNON AND MUSKETRY.—Gen. Rosekrans, in his report of the battle of Murfreesboro, estimates that of 20,000 rounds of artillery fired by the Unionists, 723 hit the enemy; and of 2,000,000 rounds of musketry, 13,832 were effectual. This would show that 27 cannon shots, or 155 musket shots were required to hit one man. Averaging the latter at one ounce each, the weight of metal required in bringing down an enemy would be 9 lbs.; while of the former it would require about 225 lbs., or one and a half times the weight of the human body. As, however, the proportion killed or dying from wounds would be only about one-fourth of the numbers put "hors de combat," the figures given above must be increased to the same degree. It will readily be seen how much more destruction is dealt by the musket than the loud-mouthed cannon, when firing either round shot or shell.

Dean Swift said with much truth, "It is useless to attempt to reason a man out of a thing he was never reasoned into. The best argument will be thrown away upon a fool."

MINERAL PROSPECTS.

It is a subject of frequent remark among strangers, speaking of our gold mines, that they are rather limited in extent, or at least the richest of them are so. No one pretends now to doubt the existence in British Columbia of as rich deposits of the precious metals as those of either California or Australia, but it is said as regards extent we have nothing to show equal to those countries. To that, however, we may at least say it remains to be tested. The same remark might have have been made in 1859, after the revulsion. It might then have been alleged that we had nothing better than the Fraser river diggings. The existence of deposits, such as those of Cariboo, though admitted to be possible, would not generally be thought probable. And so with regard to Peace River. Thus, we learn a lesson that should not be lost. It is only by a persevering and thorough search that the hidden treasures of the country will be brought to light. People must not run away with the idea that no great discoveries will be made in the lower country. If they have only of late years made the discovery of certain gold deposits in Britain, a country so long settled and so thoroughly honey-combed (if we may use the expression), with mines of all kinds, what may we not expect in these colonies, where every indication of metalic wealth is so promising—but of which even the geography cannot yet be said to be thoroughly known. Take the country between the mouth of the Fraser and Alexandria, how very little we do know of it. Miles and miles of it have never been trodden by the foot of a white man. From the little we know of it, there is every possibility of gold, silver, and copper being found in the mountains, of which it is mainly composed. Wash gold, has, in fact, been found in streams flowing from them. The accounts received a few days ago, and at various times previously, from Bridge River, show that it must exist in considerable quantities. And so with respect to silver, of which the indications are of the strongest kind. As to the existence of copper, in large quantities, there can scarcely be the possibility of a doubt. The gold, silver, and copper bands which are found in the back-bone of the American Continent, from North to South, only require searching for to be brought to light. The inducements towards entering into a thorough prospect of the lower countryfor various metals, are far greater now than they were a few years ago. There was a doubt then among a great many of the probability of these countries rapidly attaining to the prominent position which is now marked out for them. All hesitation has now, however, vanished. No one fears to embark in extensive and costly undertakings, from an idea that in a few years all the prosperity and population of the country will vanish "like the baseless fabric of a vision." Great lines of internal communication have been opened, connecting the northern El Dorado, at one extreme of the Colony, with the seaboard at the other. The difficulties of travel and the transportation of freight are every day becoming less. The country is becoming prepared for something more than alluvial mining. As it has been in California, so we may expect it to be here. Gold and silver quartz mining, and copper mining will follow close in the wake of creek and gulch diggings. The cost of transporting mills, machinery, and provisions being reduced, the principal physical obstacles to deep mining may be said to have vanished. Nor do we think that capital will be longer withheld. The monied men of the Old Country are fast becoming aware of the splendid field that lies open to them for investment in these Colonies. The monies they have been wont to contribute towards developing the resources of foreign countries, they will soon turn to a better use in building up one of the latest but, let us hope, not one of the least of the Colonies of the British Crown. They have helped to make Chile one of the first copper-producing countries in the world. They have developed the gold mines of Brazil. They have sunk their millions in the silver mines of Mexico. Having dealt thus with foreign countries, it is not to be supposed that when we shall have convinced them of the soundness of our claims upon their notice, that we shall be passed by. The importance, therefore, of exploring the gold-bearing streams of the Lower Country to their source in the mountains needs no further comment. The probability of discovering auriferous and argentiferous quartz, one would think, would be quite sufficient to warrant the organisation of prospecting parties. Even though the veins should not turn out as rich as some of those in Cariboo, still, more might yet be made out of them from their proximity to the seaboard. We see no reason why we should not in a few years make some approach to the picture of mining activity that presents itself in California and the adjacent territories. Until these Colonies shall have been explored to even a tithe of the extent of those countries, we see no reason for concluding that we present only a limited field for the mining even of precious metals. So far everything bids us persevere. Every indication tends to a favorable issue, and leads us to expect that the mountains and hills of British Columbia are no less rich in minerals than the Golden State of the South.
